ACADEMIC PROJECTS

Final Year Project, Improve Healthcare Operation in Hong Kong 01/09/2025 – 10/05/2026
Development of Surgery Duration Prediction Model for United Christian Hospital

- Architected a hybrid feature engineering pipeline utilizing Byte-Pair Encoding (BPE) for unstructured clinical text tokenization. Enhanced model accuracy by integrating structured data with cyclical encoding to capture temporal periodicity, while optimizing feature dimensionality through strategic One-Hot Encoding of categorical variables.
- Systematically benchmarked 20+ algorithms using the Optuna framework to execute Bayesian hyperparameter optimization and architected an Out-of-Fold (OOF) Ensemble Stacking model using a 5-fold cross-validation framework to integrate diverse base learners, utilizing a meta-learner to achieve a superior 30% improvement in Mean Absolute Error (MAE) with 28.95 minutes.
- Leveraged SHAP-based interpretability to identify architectural weaknesses and quantify feature dependencies, resulting in a stable model with a 21% improvement with $0.691 R^2$ and low overfitting index.
